Approval of Minutes

1. Action: The minutes of the last meeting, 29 May 1952, (IAC-M-72) were approved.

RDB Request for Intelligence
Estimate of Soviet Scientific and Technological Capabilities
(IAC-D-51)

2. Action: Agreed that the RDB request would be met by the JIC if this proved to be within the latter's capability. In this event it was understood that the JIC would arrange for the RDB promptly to withdraw their request on the DCI.

3. Discussion: It was pointed out that the JIC had a study now in progress (JIC 603/1) which was along the lines of the RDB request. It was thought probable that with some adaptation this study would satisfy the RDB request and also serve as a scientific and technological contribution for NIE-65. General Smith stated that a component of the Defense Department, such as RDB, should, where possible, get its intelligence support from the military intelligence agencies. The DCI satisfies the intelligence requirements of the NSC and, although willing to satisfy a need of such organizations as RDB, if practicable, will be glad to have such needs satisfied elsewhere. In response to a question General Smith agreed that CIA components would be willing to give informal assistance to the military analysts, to the extent that was practicable in the light of their other duties, but made it clear that CIA does not participate in JIC estimates and assumes no responsibility therefor. If it should develop that the JIC could not without outside contributions meet the RDB need and the RDB request is not withdrawn, then the DCI stated he would expect to try to satisfy the request on a community basis.

Probable Development in Argentina (NIE-66)

4. Action: Approved.

5. Action: Final consideration postponed pending re-examination of the paper by the representatives, taking into account the

State Department's proposed changes

Dissemination of NIE's
to the NSC Senior Staff

8. Discussion: While recognizing the obligation to serve the NSC, Mr. Armstrong expressed concern regarding the recent practice, as in the case of SE-30, of dissemination to the NSC Senior Staff of draft NIE's. It was his fear that such dissemination would impress the minds of the readers so that the final approved version might not be read and earlier impressions changed. Such a result is quite possible in the instance of the present estimate on Berlin, which as approved is quite different from the draft version. Furthermore, this practice could conceivably have the effect of freezing the view of the Board in subsequent interagency discussions on the estimate.

9. Mr. Becker pointed out that the NSC Senior Staff had on occasion written its own intelligence into policy papers and that this had disturbed General Smith. At the same time the NSC Senior Staff had indicated that it would be much more useful if intelligence could be available earlier in the preparation of an NSC policy paper. General Smith had accordingly instructed that such accommodations as were possible be made to take care of the two foregoing points.

10. It was recognized that in the case of the present crash estimate, in which the first draft did not contain agency contributions because of time limitations, such preliminary dissemination to the Senior Staff was inadvisable unless made available with notice simultaneously to the agencies. However, Mr. Armstrong indicated that he would be less concerned over dissemination to the Senior Staff of estimates which reflected agency views but were not necessarily fully coordinated.

Probable Soviet Courses of Action with Respect to Berlin
(SE-30)

11. Action: Approved the estimate as modified. The State Department dissent will be revised and shortened prior to publication.
